20th Century Signs of Infectious Times

Quarantine signs such as these were prevalent nationwide during the first half of the 20th century, warning visitors away from homes with smallpox, polio and other infectious diseases.

Image of a nurse posting a scarlet fever warning sign on a Rhode Island home in 1939.
Scarlet fever and diphtheria warning signs issued by the Providence Board of Health, circa 1935.