MARIN, CALIFORNIA

During the massive power outages this week in California, resource centers, power stations and shelters were filled to capacity. RIMJ Associate Editor, Dr. Kenneth Korr, checked the draft of this month’s issue at a PG&E charging center near the Hamilton Coast Guard base in Marin County, blacked out for several days. Water, snacks, flashlights and small solar lamps were given out at check-in. Hundreds of thousands in the state were affected and schools, clinics and businesses closed for the duration. To the north of Marin, the Sonoma fires forced massive evacuations.
